Introduction

Athabasca University, Canada's Open University, is the premier distance education university in Canada and is recognized as one of the world's leading open and distance learning universities. The credibility of this claim rests not only on the uncompromising quality of instruction and services the University offers to its students, but also on the quality of the research and scholarly output of individual faculty members and their respective academic centres.

Athabasca University is committed to excellence in teaching, research, and scholarship. This commitment is outlined in the Strategic University Plan. The research commitment of the University is explained in the University Research Plan and demonstrated by the contributions of faculty and professional staff to refereed disciplinary journals, in books authored and edited, in papers presented at learned societies and colloquia, in external research grants awarded, and internally funded research activities.

This edition of Staff Publications and Research Grants, the 17th since the creation of the University in 1970, demonstrates the commitment of Athabasca University staff to excellence in research and scholarship. It has been streamlined further because of a significant increase in publications and other research activities. The changes are designed to better reflect the true nature of the types of research conducted at the University, along with other scholarly achievements of academic, professional, and tutorial staff at Athabasca University between July 1, 2005, and June 30, 2006. This publication is intended to serve as a source document in responding to specific inquiries about the publications produced and research undertaken at Athabasca University.
